

Dear Officers of an ASEE Division,
Please consider forwarding this invitation to your division membership.

The ASEE Diversity Committee would like to invite you to a free workshop on Microinequities. It will be held on Sunday June 23, 2013 1:00 PM to 4:00 PM in the Georgia World Congress Center, A312.

Microinequity is a term applied to a situation where individuals can be singled out, overlooked, ignored, or otherwise discounted based on a physical characteristic such as gender or race. This workshop will help individuals become more aware of micro-inequities and how to avoid them, thereby improving workplace and classroom climate.

Our speaker is Stephen Young, Senior Partner of Insight Education Systems, a management consulting firm specializing in leadership and organizational development services. Stephen's widely acclaimed seminar Microinequities: The Power of Small™ has been embraced by over 15 percent of the Fortune 500 corporations and is being touted by corporate leaders as the new paradigm for diversity and leadership. He is the author of the top-selling book, Micromessaging: Why Great Leadership is Beyond Words. Read more: http://www.asee.org/public/conferences/20/registration/view_session?session_id=2389
